Find out what famous folks' signatures secretly say about them! Handwriting analysis expert Sheila R. Lowe interprets these signings.

Michelle Deen

Jamie Lynn Spears

Jamie Lynn's signature says, "Here I am. It's me: Take it or leave it." She's having too much fun to bother pretending to be something other than who she is. She's careful about small details: She dots her "i" very close to the stem. She likes to take things one step at a time, making sure she knows what's up before moving forward.

Jon McKee

Zac Efron

Zac's large, wild, illegible signature says he doesn't really care what other people think of him. He's impatient and can't stand to be pinned down. Zac's an individualist who likes to be seen, but not known. Someone should tell him not to slash through his name the way he does because it's like crossing himself out.

Emma Roberts

Emma's pen produced a thick line of ink, so she enjoys the nice things in life—good food, strong music and warm colors. The little heart at the beginning of her name tells us Emma wants to be seen as friendly and affectionate.

ABC Family Channel

Ryan Sypek

Ryan is active and has more energy than he knows what to do with. The series of vertical lines in his first name don't say anything we can read. The message? "Don't ask me anything too personal 'cause I won't answer." Yet, his last name ends with a curve that reaches out to other people and says, "I want to get to know you better."
